A "Participant" is defined as any individual associated with the same ID card, phone number, email address, IP address or computer device. This definition does not restrict Anzo Cap from using additional methods to verify participants' identity. Anzo Cap prohibits the use of proxies, and third-party identities for the purpose of circumventing these rules and reserves the right to refuse rewards and reallocate them to the next eligible participant if a Participant exceeds the allowed number of wins. Weekly, two winners per award type will be announced, totaling four winners. Over the competition period, each category of the Special Award — Weekly Highest Profit Rate and Weekly Highest Trading Volume — will recognize up to 30 winners. At the final settlement on Sunday, the weekly initial equity plus deposit plus internal transfer amounts must meet the requirements of at least USD 200 to be eligible for the award.

Competition Rules and Terms

1. Must be a valid Anzo Cap trading account holder. Non-Anzo Cap clients must register for an account before participating in the competition.

2. Competition nicknames must be letters and numbers, cannot include special characters.

3. The competition evaluates rewards based on effective trading lots and effective trading time.
   a) Explanation of Effective Trading Lots: Effective trading lots are assessed based on deposit requirements and standard lot sizes for each group. Please refer to the [Conditions of Participation] and examples for minimum trading lot requirements.
   b) Explanation of Effective Trading Time:
   Effective trading time requires maintaining positions for at least 10 trading days during the competition period or having trading activities on at least 10 trading days. 10 trading days of effective trading time meet the minimum requirement.
   c) Participants who do not meet the minimum requirements for effective trading lots and effective trading time will not be included in the final rankings.
   - Example 1: Client A participates in the Voyage Team during the competition period, deposits $500USD, opens 1 standard lot order, and holds the position for 10 trading days. In this case, client A meets the minimum effective trading lots and effective trading time requirements, making this data eligible for final review.
   - Example 2: Client B participates in the Pride Team during the competition period, deposits $5,000 USD, opens 5 standard lot orders, and holds the position for 10 trading days. Here, the client only meets the minimum effective trading time requirement and does not meet the minimum effective trading lots (require at least 7.5 standard lots for $5,000 USD), thus this data does not meet the criteria for final review.

4. Special Explanation of Effective Trading Lots and Effective Trading Time:
   a. Scenario 1: Client A's account registers at the registration time (February 26, 2025, 00:00:00) and holds trading orders from the start (March 3, 2025, 00:00:00) to the end of the official competition. These trades (including closed and open orders) count towards effective trading time and trading lots.
   b. Scenario 2: Client B's account registers after the start of the official competition (March 3, 2025, 00:00:00). Trades from the moment of successful registration until the end date (including closed and open orders) count towards effective trading time and trading lots.
   c. Scenario 3: Client C's account registers at the registration time (February 26, 2025, 00:00:00) and opens trades before the start of the official competition (March 3, 2025, 00:00:00), closing them before the end of the competition (June 15, 2025, 23:59:59). Despite opening trades before the official competition, these count towards effective trading time and trading lots.
   d. Scenario 4: Client D opens trades during the official competition but does not close them before the competition ends (June 15, 2025, 23:59:59). This scenario also counts towards effective trading time and trading lots.
   e. Scenario 5: Client E's account registers at the registration time (February 26, 2025, 00:00:00), opens trades before the official competition (March 3, 2025, 00:00:00), and closes them after the competition ends (June 15, 2025, 23:59:59). This situation does not count towards effective trading lots but does count towards effective trading time.

5. Calculation Formula and Explanation：

a. Formula:

$$\boldsymbol{Rate\ of\ Return = \frac{Profit}{Initial\ Capital} = \frac{(Final\ Equity - Initial\ Capital)}{Initial\ Capital}}$$

$$\text{Initial Capital} = \text{Initial Deposit} + \text{Accumulated Deposit} + \text{Transferred In} + \text{MISC}$$

$$\text{Final Equity} = \text{Net worth of the account at the end of the competition (excluding bonuses)}$$

b. Formula Explanation：

- Initial Capital: Any funds not generated from trading activities, including initial deposits, accumulated deposits, transferred in, and MISC.
- Initial Deposit (Equity): The net worth of the account at the start of the official competition (on March 3, 2025, at 00:00:00 MT4/MT5 time), or the net worth at the time of successful registration after the competition has started. Excludes bonuses.
- Accumulated Deposits: Deposits made after the start of the official competition (on March 3, 2025, at 00:00:00 MT4/MT5 time), or deposits made after successful registration during the competition.
- Transferred In: Amount transferred internally during the official competition (on March 3, 2025, at 00:00:00 MT4/MT5 time), or internal transfers made after successful registration during the competition.
- MISC: Total sum of all expenses excluding those generated by trading, including but not limited to cashback, dividends, SWAP interest, etc.
- Rate of Return includes profit and loss of all Anzo Cap account instruments.

c. Scenario Explanation：

Scenario 1

Client A registered at registration period (on February 26, 2025, 00:00:00). At that time, the account net worth was $2,000 (original equity). On February 28, $3,000 was deposited without any trades. Therefore, the total Initial Deposit at the start of the competition (March 3) is $5,000. During the competition, there was an internal transfer of $1,000, MISC amounted to $1,500, and a profit of $2,000 was achieved.

- Final Equity: (2000 original + 3000 deposit before competition) 5000 [initial deposit] +1000 [transferred in] + 1500 [MISC] + 2000 [profit] = 9500
- Rate of Return:

$$\textbf{Rate of return 26.67\%} = \frac{9500 - (5000 + 1000 + 1500)}{5000 + 1000 + 1500}$$

Scenario 2

Client B registered after the official start of the competition (March 3, 2025, at 00:00:00). The actual registration date was April 15, with an initial deposit of $3,000 (Initial Deposit), and an additional deposit of $4,500 was made on April 17 (Accumulated Deposits). During the competition, an internal transfer of $2,568 was made, $1,000 was withdrawn, and there was no MISC. A profit of $2,500 was achieved.

- Final Equity: 3000 [initial deposit] + 4500 [Accumulated Deposits] + 2568 [transferred in] + 2500 [profit] – 1000 [withdrawal] = 11568

- Rate of Return:

$$\textbf{Rate of return 14.90\%} = \frac{11568 - (3000 + 4500 + 2568)}{3000 + 4500 + 2568}$$

6. A participant can use multiple trading accounts for the competition:
    a. Rate of Return will be calculated per individual account.
    b. However, this does not mean participants can engage in malicious hedging across multiple accounts to manipulate competition results. Upon detection of such behavior, Anzo Cap reserves the right to forfeit the participant's results. Monitoring of accounts across different participants will also be conducted, and results involving malicious hedging behavior will be forfeited.

7. During the competition period, participants can deposit/withdraw funds or make internal transfers. However, when calculating the rate of return, cumulative deposits and internal transfers will be considered as the initial capital amount.

    Example: During the competition, a participant's account total deposits of $5,000. Before the end of the competition, the participant withdrew $1,500, leaving a remaining balance of $3,500. However, for rate of return calculation purposes, the initial capital amount considered will be $5,000, not $3,500 (refer to Calculation Formula and Explanation).

8. If a participant needs to change their competition team during the competition period after registration, they may apply for a change at any time. However, please note that once the team change is confirmed, all competition data will be reset.

9. Participants are allowed to use any trading technique or automated trading system that does not violate competition rules. Any arbitrage trading or other abuse of pricing and/or quoting will result in disqualification from the competition.

10. After the competition ends, Anzo Cap will announce the list of winners within 10 business days and distribute the prizes within 30 business days. Winners of the money award must claim their rewards by clicking on the portal; trophy winners should fill in their personal information on the portal for trophy production. Weekly awards will be automatically reviewed each week. Clients who meet the criteria will have the rewards automatically credited to their trading accounts, without needing to apply. The rewards are typically credited within three business days.

11. Discovery of cheating will result in immediate disqualification. The competition aims to provide a fair and just environment for all participants, and any behaviors that undermines the fairness and integrity of the entire competition will be deemed invalid.

12. Participants must consent to and allow the disclosure and verification of their relevant trading information on the platform.

13. Anzo Cap reserves the right of final interpretation of the competition rules and terms.

14. Anzo Cap reserves the right to investigate any incompliant operations based on reasonable grounds. If Anzo Cap finds that a participant is involved in such operations based on reasonable grounds or suspicion, Anzo Capital reserves the right to deduct, revoke, refuse the competition reward or cancel the participant’s qualification

15. Anzo Cap reserves the right to modify or cancel rules, terms and requirements related to this competition without prior notice or participant’s consent.

16. Leveraged products involve significant risks and may not be suitable for all investors. The trading competition does not guarantee any results, and participants must bear the risks of participation on their own.

17. Participants are responsible for reporting and paying taxes on any Monetary Awards received. The Company is not responsible for withholding taxes or advising on tax obligations. Participants should consult their own tax advisors.
